C. C. Derryberry, of West Tennessee, was on a short visit to relatives in this county, this week. John Moore, of West Tennessee, gave us a call a few days since. Prof. O. H. P. Allen Powell, the popular caterer at Powell's, has sent us by Henry Jordan, a great curiosity, in the shape of a large lump of crystalized foam, which he picked up on the river while fishing. It is nearly as large as a boy's head, and is evidently the stuff out of which meerschaums are made.

Col. J. E. Jacobs, agent for the Republic Life Insurance Company, has been in town several weeks, for the pur-pose of organizing a branch at this place. John Frierson, President of the First National Bank, Dr. J. M. Towler, Hon. J. H. Thomas, and others of the best basiness men in Columbia, have taken considerable stock, which is the very best evidence that it possesses features more than usually attractive and excellent. The branch company will be managed by our own citizens, and all the funds invested here in our

Two fights, by the same parties, took place near the door of the Episcopal Church on last Sunday evening. A lad was making a noise with the door knob, and a gentleman tried to make him quit it. He threw him down the steps, and the boy, in return, hit the man with a rock. A slight caning of the boy followed, and then the two went back into the church. As the gentleman was coming out of the chu after the services were over, be was struck on the back of the herd with a big rock, which stunned him somewhat. Being very robust, however, he soon rallied, and caned the boy to is heart's content, with a rattan. We direct attention to Mrs. M. J. Bryant's

Her stock of hair fixtures and ornaments is especially large. She is receiving new goods every day, and invites the tadies to call and examine. We call attention to the advertisement Mr. R. M. Frierson. The people of this county will be glad to know that this popular young druggist has returned to Columbia, and bought out the firm of McKinney &

Smith. His long experience in the business makes him fully at home in all departments. He has just received a large associment of growing flowers, vines and evergreens, which the urbane and accomplished Mr. Hendricks will be delighted to show the ladies. Easter Tide.

Last Sabbath Morning, at 6 o'clock, only two men were among the lady worshippers at St. Peter's Church. It was nemorable morning when the Savior rose from the grave. In the alternoon at hree o'clock, a great many people thronged the church to witness the "Children's Celebration." A procession of children marched into the church, and along the aisles, singing Ancient and Modern hymns. The

I believe that it is not the grass that does the mischief. Fowler frequently says that the propagation of species depends upon the normal condition of the animal; in other words, the animal must be in perfect health. A healthy female always reproduces its kind. If grass makes your mares sick, you ought not to feed it to them. Grass, in this case, is only the indirect cause of the danger feared; it is the sickness, produced by the grass, that does the work. I think the bad results which the gentlemen deplore and fear are frequently the result of circumstances; such as, overworking and straining the mares; the very exhausting training the mares; the very exhaust sucking of colts, and other things the have a tendency to destroy the normal condition of the mares. You need not lear to put your mares on pastures, however rank the grass, unless it makes ever rank the grass, unless it makes them sick, Mr. Wilkes asked the question if those mares that fail to have colts are not, in most instances, in a bad state of health, and received an affirmative answer. The Club went into the discuss not bring, as a specimen this morning, the largest ears he had; he merely got the largest ears he had; he merely got the most original ears. D. J. Estes said, in reply to a question, that he, on one occasion, gathered twenty-five bar-rels of corn from one acre in one year J. B. story.

D. J. Estes-I did not say that raised twenty-five bushels on one acre in one year. The way of it was this; I did not gather the crop of one year until after the new year following, but the product of that following year I gathered before Christmas, and in this way I gathered two crops, twelve and a half product of that following year I gathered before Christmas, and in this way I gathered two crops, twelve and a half barrels each, per acre, in one year. I bed my land, and drill it. I plant one grain eighteen inches apart. The rows are made 4½ feet wide. I have only one stalk in one place, and few hills need replanting. You may put two stalks forty inches apart, and I will beat you with my one stalk eighteen inches apart.

D. J. Estes—No, I do not find it so, when it is taken into hand early, and not allowed to get foul.

PRESIDENT—When you drill your corn, large rains are more liable to make gullies.

D. J. ESTES—I do not think so.

J. B. HAMUJON—I once tried planting down in the bottom of the furrow, and the result was anything but gratifying.

D. J. Estes.—I know the field you tried your experiment upon. I have cultivated it myself, and found that it will not bear subsoiling, although it is rich. Subsoiling makes it freuch the corn.

Mr. Estes, in reply to a guestion of the control of rich. Subsoiling makes it freuch the corn.

Mr. Estes, in reply to a question, replied that he raised, last year, only six or seven barrels per acro, as it suffered from drouth. He usually gathers from seven to nine barrels. Eight barrels is a good yield. When land is poor, 4½ feet is not wide enough for the rows, nor 18 inches far enough apart for the stalks.

Mr. Joyce said he made seven barrels per acre last year, and T. H. Williams said he gathered nine from ground upon which he had manured with Baugh's superphosphate.

Mr. Wisener said he hooke up his land but once, and checked it off before begun, and soon their complete and merited success.

Transforming the Complexion.
The transformations produced by Hagen's dagnolia Balm are quite as astonishing as any scene on the stage of a theatre. That famou, beautifier, transmutes a sallow, peeky looking complexion, late one in which the lily and the rose vie for admiration, and imparts to a dry-harsh skin, the softness of perfect loveliness. Tan and freckles, which country air and sunlight are pretty sure to produce, in spite of parasols and sundowns, are completely obliterated by it; while it has a perfectly magical effect in banishing undue redness, blotches and pimples from the skin.
